Music: Jazz, up and under

Announce: Jeremy Libby is a fan of the visual arts—paintings, sculpture, drawings, pop art—all kinds of art. As a teenager he was paralyzed in a fall, and uses a wheelchair, but that doesn't stop him from visiting the museums and galleries.

Libby: I love museums. I love attending exhibits. It's always just wonderfully enriching to be able to see and learn something new—especially something new—especially to see and learn something new about the arts, because the arts, they reveal something about the heart of our culture.

Announce: Everyone, he says, needs access to the arts.

Libby: The arts are invigorating; they're refreshing and rewarding in so many ways. Without the arts it would feel like our culture had no soul.

Announce: The arts. They're for everyone.

Music up to end and out.
